In this room Valderrobres parish's gilded silver processional cross is presented. This is the only piece made from precious metals that has been preserved from the old religious treasure originally housed in this temple. After being seized in 1936 by the anarchist government of Aragon, it was lost until 1971, when it was identified, restored, and transferred to Valderrobres.

On the screen in the tribune, the cross's history and iconography are explained graphically and in detail in a three minute video.

Now head towards the castle passageway.
